FATAL ACCIDENT SNAPS OUT LIFE OF TEMPERANCE WORKER THIS MORNING

Mrs. J. C. Miller on Way to Second Ward Lunch House Struck by Train and Instantly Killed

Two Sons of Mrs. Miller Boarded Train at Station Here Unaware That Few Minutes Before It Had Run Down and Killed Their Mother.

Wearing a button with the words "Vote Out the Saloons for Me," and while on her way to the Second ward lunch house, where she was on a committee to serve free lunch during the voting hours, Mrs. Isabel Miller, the wife of John Calvin Miller, a well known B. & O. baggagemaster, was struck at the Cedar Street crossing of the Pennsylvania line, and instantly killed, being thrown for a distance of 100 feet.

The accident happened at about 5:40 o'clock Monday morning. The electric lights had been extinguished earlier than usual and it was quite dark. Although no one saw the accident, the watchman at the crossing, M. Fleming, was on the south side of the tracks to flag for the approaching fast passenger, No. 21, westbound, which was approaching on the second track from the north. On the first track of the north came a westbound slow freight. Owing to the fact that the lights had been extinguished early, the watchman could not see Mrs. Miller starting across the track in front of the freight. She succeeded in getting out of the way of the one train just as the passenger whizzed by on the track as she attempted to cross it.

The first that was known of the accident was when two men crossed the track a few minutes later and saw a woman's hat lying on the crossing. They walked across the street and a foot up the track, where the body of Mrs. Miller was found. Criss Bros. & Jones, undertakers, were notified, and the body was taken to their parlors on South Third street.

Examination showed that the woman had sustained a crushing blow on the back of the skull and a deep cut on the chin. The body was cared for and taken to the home in the forenoon.

The train that killed Mrs. Miller bore her two sons, Frank and Harry, to Columbus, after having spent Sunday at home. The older son, Frank, is employed in the Columbus offices of the Hocking Valley railroad, and the young son, Harry, a graduate of the Newark high school, is a student in O. S. U.

Mr. Miller left for Cincinnati on his regular run on the B. & O. Sunday afternoon and returned to this city at noon Monday. The husband and sons are suffering intensely from the tragic death of Mrs. Miller. On their arrival in the city they were taken to the home of the family, 224 Indiana street, by the Rev. T. A. Cosgrove, pastor of the Second Presbyterian church, of which Mrs. Miller was a member. She was also prominent in social circles, being secretary of the Caterie club, a local social organization.

Mrs. Miller had been assigned to the district lunch stand of the local option workers, in a building just north of the railroad tracks on the east side of Cedar street, but on her arrival it was found that they had plenty of help and would not need her assistance so badly as the ladies at the Second ward lunch, so it was for that place she had started when the train struck her.

It had been her intention to call for Mrs. Joseph Evans, on Cedar street, and accompany her to the other lunch stand.

Mrs. Miller was 34 years of age and besides her immediate family, leaves the following sisters and brothers: Mrs. Julia Russell, South Fourth street; Mrs. Hines, Magnetic Springs; Mrs. Maggie Huffman, of Emporia, Kans.; Mrs. Mary Thompson of Pittsburgh, and Will Madden of Portland, Ore. One brother, Melville Madden, was killed on a western railroad several years ago.

The time of the funeral has not been decided upon by the family.

STATE HOUSE FIRE SUNDAY

BAD WIRING CAUSES DAMAGE AMOUNTING TO ABOUT $200.00.

Started in Basement Storeroom of Mining and Insurance Departments—Few Records Damaged.

Columbus, Dec. 7.—Defective wiring in the basement of the state capitol annex caused a $200 loss to the contents of the mining and insurance departments storage rooms about 10 o'clock Sunday morning.

The blaze started in the mining department storage rooms, which are located near the boiler rooms in the judiciary building or annex. The wires short-circuited and caused the records and other paper in the room to smolder, and the corridors of the building were well filled with smoke before the blaze was discovered and an alarm turned in.

A few records and a considerable number of unused record blanks in the mining department store room were destroyed by flames and considerable damage was done to the papers by smoke and water. Damage in the insurance department store rooms was entirely by smoke and water.

SEARCHERS

For Missing Steel Freighter D. M. Clemson Abandon Hope—Had Crew of Twenty-Five.

Duluth, Dec. 7.—Although a systematic search along Lake Superior started today, hope has practically been abandoned for the steel freighter, D. M. Clemson, four days over due here. It is thought the vessel and crew of 25 sank in last week's storm.

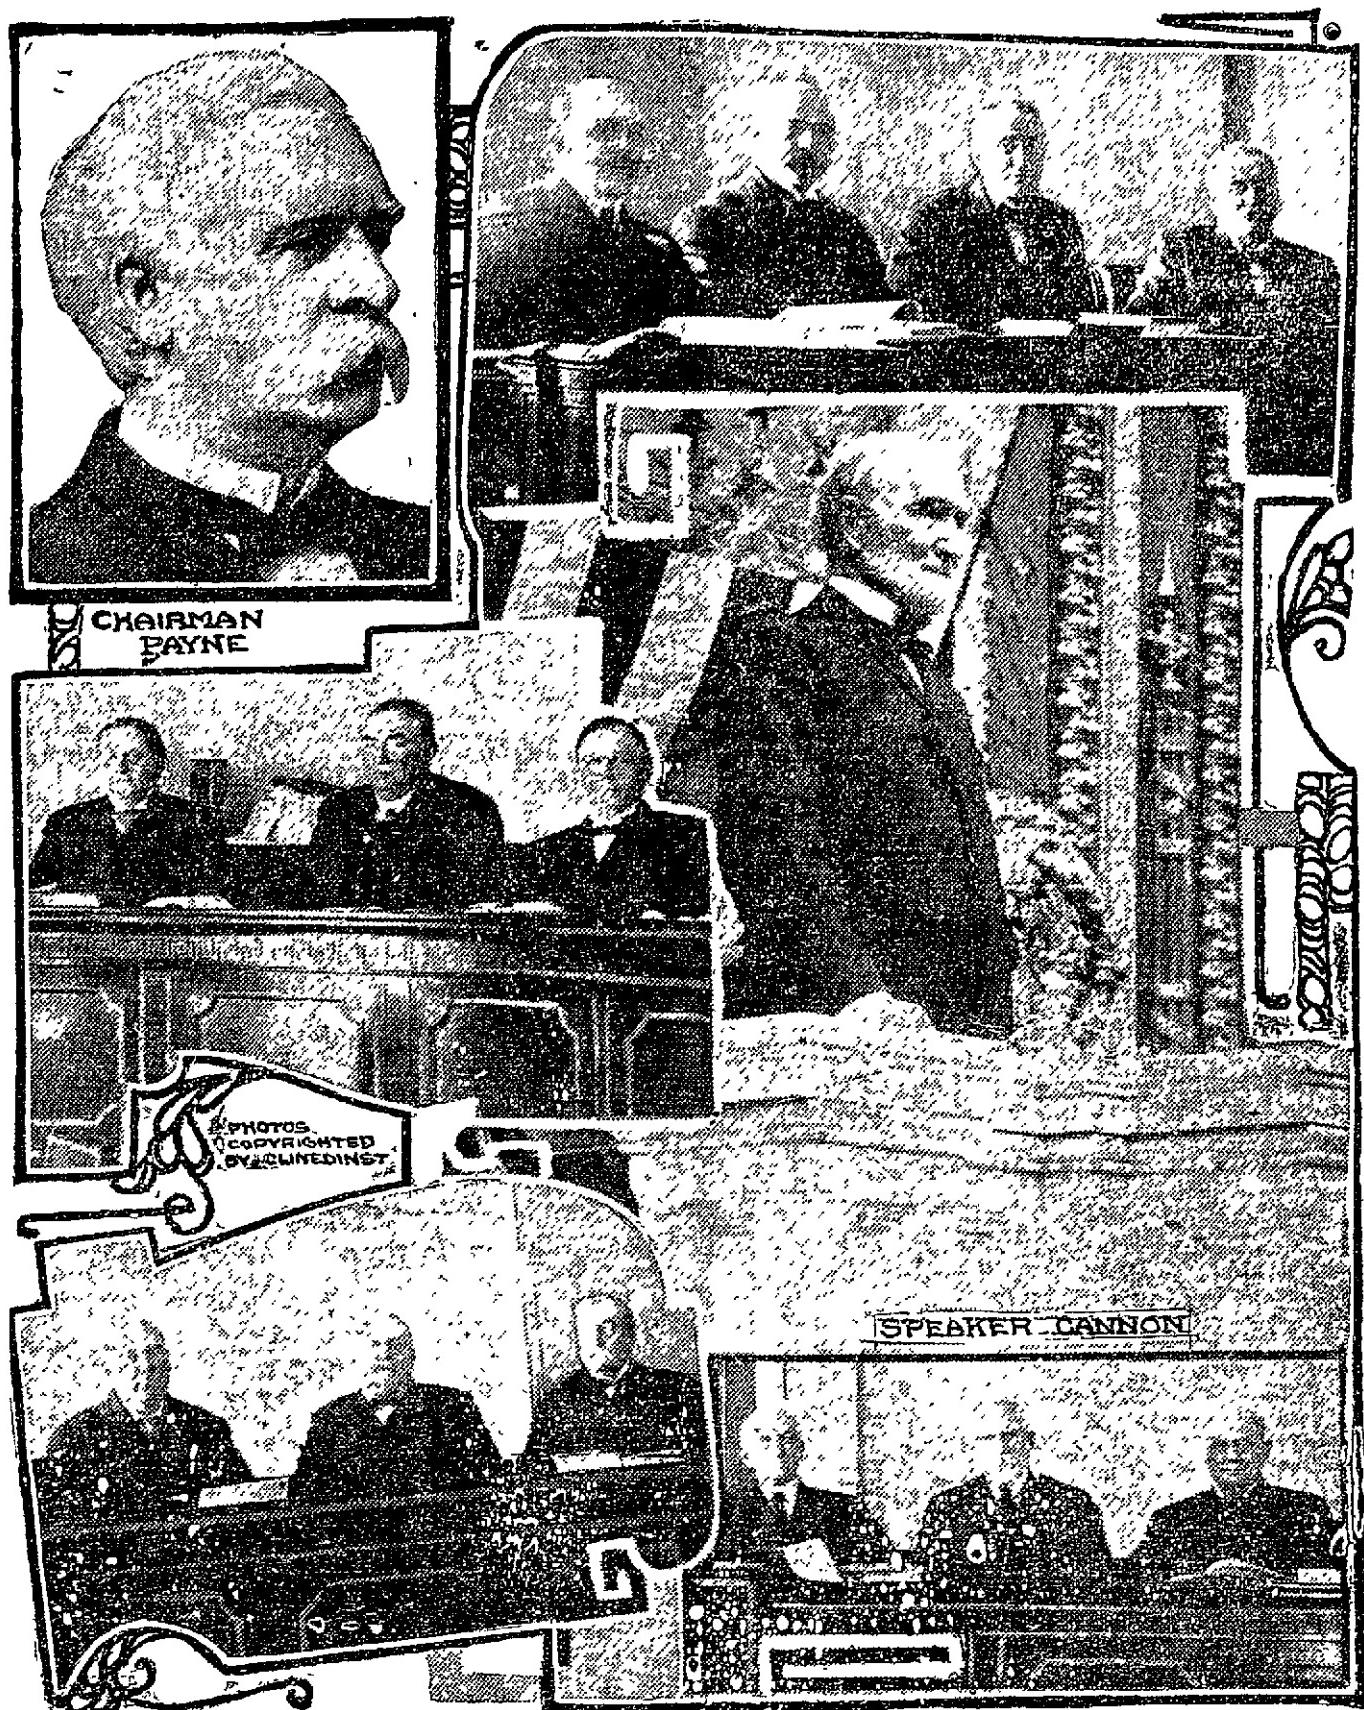

Washington, Dec. 7—Cabinet biders who profess to know something of Mr. Taft's plans in that direction are confident that Theodore E. Burton will be a member of the new president's official family. They base their opinion primarily upon Mr. Taft's high regard for the Ohio representative and point out that the selection would clear up the rivalry between Mr. Burton and Charles F. Taft for Senator's seat in the Senate. The report is that the treasury portfolio will be offered to Mr. Burton.

General Simon Has Proclaimed Himself Executive of Haiti to Succeed Deposed President

Port au Prince, Dec. 7.—Quiet prevails here, although there were reports of threatening trouble in other towns in Haiti. General Antoine Simon, commander-in-chief of the revolutionaries, who entered Port au Prince at the head of an army of about 8000 men, has issued a proclamation to the people and the army, in which he assumed the title of chief executive, and declared he would organize a provisional government pending the assembling of the parliament. In his proclamation he made an appeal to the wisdom of the nation and the discipline of the army.

At 5 o'clock Sunday morning the Cuban exiles Oteri arrived here from Kingston, having on board General Foucauld and 39 other exiles. After length negotiations, General Simon agreed to permit General Foucauld to land, but stated that the others must remain on the steamer until tomorrow.

The two revolutionary leaders remain together for some time at General Simon's headquarters, and after proved to be a very amicable

AFTER FIERCE STRUGGLE LOCAL OPTION CAMPAIGN HAS COME TO A CLOSE

Both "Wets" and "Drys" are claiming victory but count will tell the tale

Heavy vote being cast over entire city—Women were out in force—No trouble has been reported at the polls.

The officers of the Personal Liberty League are not giving out any figures on the probable result of today's election, but individual members of the organization express the belief that the "wets" will win by a majority of 400 to 1000.

"We are going to win this contest in Licking county. Our workers in every precinct are wonderfully enthused over the outlook, and the drys will carry the county by from ten to fifteen hundred."

"boot-legger," surrounded the frightened negro and took the grip away from him. Upon its being opened it was found to contain nothing, so it was returned to the colored man who went his way rejoicing.

Both sides had engaged nearly all of the available livery outfits in the city two or three days in advance, and Monday there were autos, cabs, double and single seated carriages pressed into service to bring voters to the polls.

The women of the various churches interested in the "dry" movement, established lunch stands in every ward at nearly every voting precinct, where they served hot coffee and sandwiches all day long, dividing their time between serving and electing.

Sunday's heavy rain was followed by cold but cloudy weather. In spite of the weather condition a heavy vote is being cast.

In spite of the fact that the fight that has been on for the past three weeks has been a bitter one, few personalities were indulged in and very well avoided.

The women of the various churches interested in the "dry" movement, established lunch stands in every ward at nearly every voting precinct, where they served hot coffee and sandwiches all day long, dividing their time between serving and electing.

A large number of early voters visited the polls Monday morning, promising a very heavy vote in the city, comparing favorably with the vote cast on November 3. Police officers were on duty about the various voting places, but Mayor Atherton, after advising with the city solicitor and state authorities, refused to appoint the twenty-five extra policemen requested by the women representing the "dry's." Scarcely any trouble occurred throughout the day, although several heated arguments occurred which might have wound up in more serious trouble had not the officers interfered.

There has been much speculation as to the outcome of the vote in the city and the county, but there has been a very small amount of betting on it. Opinion seems to be greatly varied on the subject and everyone eagerly awaits the result.

COAL FLEET

Badly damaged by fire, causes loss of $100,000—Was waiting for rise in river.

Gallipolis, Dec. 7.—Damage approximating $100,000 was caused by fire in a Pittsburg coal fleet on No. 6, where a large number of iron barges were burning.

He was a noted wit and one of the most efficient officers in the navy. He was born in Frankfort, Ky., in 1872 and served from active service on December 3, 1896.

One model barge, containing the steel and iron, was completely destroyed and several other barges were damaged.

MAKING A WAY

"I want to marry Edith!"
Harlan smiled at the shocked surprise in the judge's voice.

"Is that strange?" he asked.
"Edith and I have been brought up as brother and sister, but that does not prevent us from falling in love."

"I suppose not," asserted the judge.
"But my dear boy, the thing is impossible. The man who marries Edith must be able to support a wife."

Harlan stared at the judge in amazement. "My income is about $25,000 a year," he remarked. "I guess we could get along on that."

"I don't know," was the unsatisfactory response. "He told me that he was going to earn his own living, but he did not tell me how."

"And you do not even know where he is?"
The skipper, of course, had not told him.

"When I count three all holler," commanded the skipper. "One—two—three."

At the completion of the count they all raised their voices in a cry for help. The wind seemed to snatch the cry out of their mouths before they could fully form the word, but again and again they tried and at last there came the sharp toot of the whistle in reply.

A moment later there was a flare of light through the darkness and they could make out the tug with its two barges. The skipper groaned in disappointment.

"It's no use," he said with a sob in his voice. "They can't get to us with those two heavy barges in tow."

"But he can cut loose and let the barges go," reminded the judge. "What are a few tons of coal to human lives?"

"But there's two men on each barge to watch the lines," reminded the skipper. "If he cuts loose they will be as bad off as we are."

"But he is cutting loose," cried the judge, exultingly.

"So he is," assented the skipper. "That man has nerve. I bet he aims to pick them up afterward."

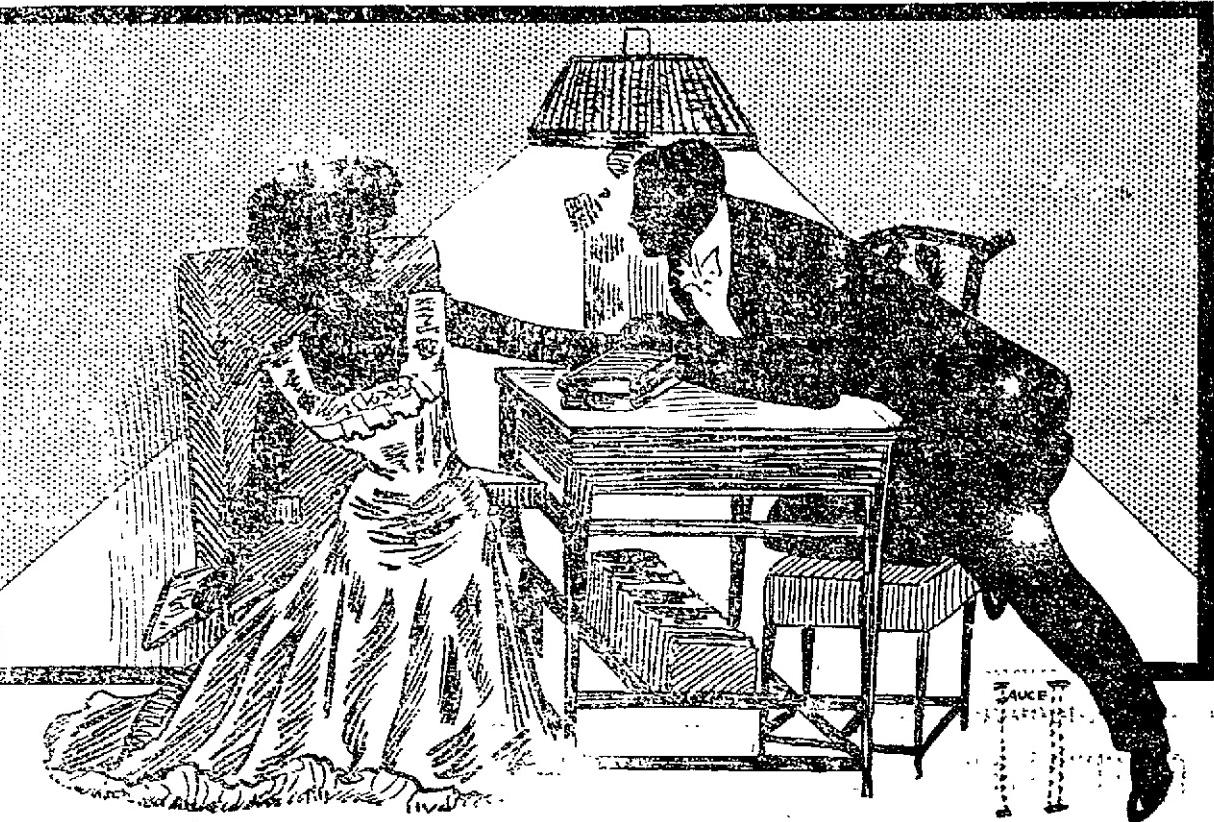

As they were speaking the tug had slipped its hawsers and was coming toward them at a better speed. The rosin flare was kept burning and though at times the wind almost extinguished it, it gave them light by which to see their way.

Rapidly the tug pushed through the water and by skilful handling gained a point above the capsized craft. They came as close as they dared then. While the captain held the tug steady, a life ring was floated down to the capsized schooner. A noose in the rope enabled the men on the tug to pull Edith aboard.

In rapid succession the men were taken off, and though the seas threatened to precipitate the tug upon the wreck more than once, the danger was averted through the ready wit of the man at the wheel, and presently the tug went steaming back into the darkness in search of the dropped bowlines.

"You won't have to wait for that," said the judge with a smile. "You have proved your point, I'll give you a better yacht than the Speedway for a wedding present, and we'll turn this contract over to the captain here to repay him for the loss of his schooner. Will you come home and be married now, my boy?"

"I rather think I will," assented Harlan. "What have I been towing coal barges all summer for, except to get a wife? I never thought I would get my wife at the end of a rope as a bit of salvage, but she is the most precious salvage ever wrested from the sea."

He Reported the Failure of His Interview to Edith and Explained to Her His Plans.

He would be successful, then, the wind caught the sails, and the next moment they were floating in the water.

The skipper caught Edith and dragged her to the side of the capsized boat while the mate performed a similar service for the boy. The two sailors shivering over the cold water, the waves washed over them at brief intervals.

Up when through the wall of the wind sounded faintly a hoarse, coughing sound. Only now and then it was heard, but there could be no mistake.

"It's that coal captain," whispered the skipper. "He's the young chap who took the contract to carry the coal for the works on the island. He's a fool to try to make the island tonight."

Even the sailors were losing strength between the cold and the rough buffeting of the sea, and though they took turns at holding Edith fast, it was plainly to be seen that presently they would be unequal to the double strain.

"Suppose he does not see us?" gasped the judge, cold with horror. The thought of help so close and yet of no avail was worse than the thought of death to which he had become almost resigned.

Some of the crew came tumbling into the engine room to dry out after their hard work, and to minister to the wants of the castaways. The cook had been late in the afternoon when they were overturned, for it was only when he felt certain that they could not make land by nightfall that the judge had insisted on returning to the island. Now the clouds turned from sultry gray to black and the darkness fell upon them.

"It's that coal captain," whispered the skipper. "He's the young chap who took the contract to carry the coal for the works on the island. He's a fool to try to make the island tonight."

THE NOVELIST

HAMBLETON hurried into his publisher's office, having been assured that the finished book would be delivered to "Miss Stella Bergen" the honor due an author who can afford to pay his own printing bills.

"Have you that copy promised?" he demanded as he set down the suit case on the floor and took a chair after the conference terminated. The kindly old man had ably ful-filled his important trust save in one, a substantial little sailboat in which he had reason to appreciate Harlan's stubbornness.

Edith welcomed a call which took them up on the New England coast a few weeks later. In the interval the judge had worried much about Roger, altho diligent inquiry had developed that Harlan had sold his cruising yacht the Speedway.

This trip to the shore might relieve the judge from some of his worry and Edith welcomed the interruption. The judge was counsel for a development company which was making a millionaire's paradise of one of the islands along the coast, and the train was for the purpose of going over some papers with the organizer of the idea, who was unwilling to take time from the direction of the work to come to the city.

In his eagerness to get back to town to fight the battle of life. Left an orphan at an early age, Harlan had been brought up by the people on the island, but stubbornly insisted upon taking chances in life. Denied a son, he had seen in his son, Harlan his successor in the project. It was a 20-mile sail straight across the ocean, and the little pony boat had made the trip across.

"I guess I'll have to go to work," was the answer. "It's just as well equipped as the old one," pressed the judge, "but the boy is still equipped to fight the battle of life. Denied a son, he had seen in his son, Harlan his successor in the project. It was a 20-mile sail straight across the ocean, and the little pony boat had made the trip across.

M'NEAL SIGNS

New Reflecto Signs Invented by C. A. McNeal, Will be Manufactured in This City.

Mr. C. A. McNeal, Newark's well known sign painter, was recently granted a patent on a new and up-to date reflecto sign which is the latest thing out. The lighting of the reflecto signs is accomplished by an entirely new principle in sign building—that of lighting an all metal sign by lights placed within the interior of the sign structure. The letters are formed by circular performances, in each of which is set a highly burnished disc reflector, set at such an angle as to reflect the image of the lights within to the eye of the observer. It is considered more durable and is legible at a greater distance than any sign on the market. If your dealer offers substitutes try some other store.

Quite an effort is being made by Republican politicians and place-seekers at Columbus to the Governor Harriman's heads and prevent him from appointing Democrats to positions in the State government. This is the Governor's right by custom and by the fact that the Governor is responsible for the conduct of state appointees whether they are of his own choice or hold-overs from the former administration. One correspondent in describing the situation made the statement that the Republican machine politicians would prevent the Governor from drawing his salary if they could.

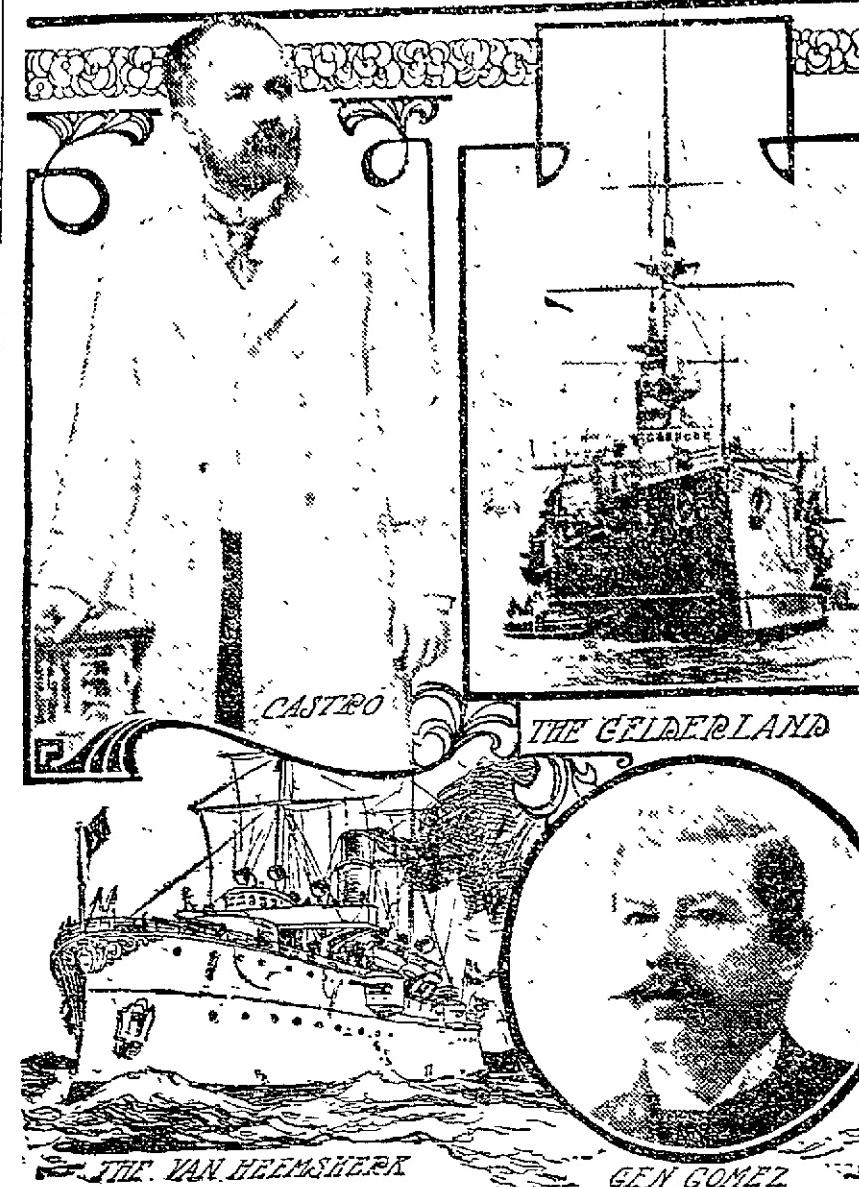

The veterans of the Civil and Spanish war will no doubt learn with great pleasure that it will be the policy of the incoming adjutant general, Col. C. C. Weybrecht, in making appointments of members of the force in the adjutant general's office in the state house, to appoint members of the national guard and veterans of the Civil war. This is a mildly put noce of "No politicians need apply," unless the applicants happen to be dead men or veterans.

During the recent campaign, after resident Gompers had declared for Bryan and assailed Taft because of his record against the laboring man, Daniel J. Kerley, president of the Longshoremen's union came to Taft's rescue and did all he could to counteract the effect of Gompers' declarations. At that time it was announced that Kerley had given the promise of good faith in case Taft was successful. The man who made the declaration was immediately placed in the Roosevelt Annex with an object in view, for Taft for he has been holding the position of commissioner of general insurance. We will now wait to see that other jobs are handed out because of loyalty to the recent fight rather than because of qualifications.

terrible blow from the brick over his right eye. He fell like a log and was shortly afterwards found by a policeman.

The patrol was called and the injured man was taken to the Station 11th. He refused to make any statement to the hospital authorities, other than claiming he "would get even" with Matheny when he was able to get out.

Dr. Cesner was called and made an examination of McDonald's injuries with the result that it was found that the man's skull was slightly cracked. Unless concussion of the brain should develop his condition while serious, is not considered necessarily fatal by the attending physician.

Following the fight Matheny walked to the city prison where he asked Turnkey Swank for a night's lodging. He was accosted and a charge of assault was also placed against him. Like McDonald he refused to talk to any extent other than claiming he didn't know anything about the assault.

TAKING THE WHOLE COUNTRY BY STORM

The new remedy is a recent discovery, but it is taking the whole country by storm. It has cured so many people throughout the state within the past few months that scores of newspapers are publishing local testimonials, giving names, streets and numbers of many people whose word cannot be doubted. The remedy certainly must have remarkable merit as so many people after using it a short while are advising their sick friends to try it. The Greensburg, Ind., Daily Review recently published the following. Mr. J. W. Boyle of 116 West Washington street, said, "My wife has been taking Root Juice and it has done wonders for her. Before taking it she had a very bad stomach. The lightest food would sour on her stomach and cause it to burn and pain her very much. In fact, she said she felt like it was raw from top to bottom. Recently her trouble was aggravated by an attack of la grippe. Her appetite was very poor, but after taking the Root Juice a few days she had a good appetite and could digest everything she ate without the least pain or inconvenience. She is no longer weak and nervous, and seems like a new woman. The remedy has proved a wonderful blessing to her." In fact so many people are talking about the new remedy and telling about its great soothing, healing and toning qualities to the stomach, bowels, liver and kidneys that it is now hard for the Root Juice people to make it fast enough to fill all orders. It is retailled for one dollar a bottle. Many local people have testified to its wonderful merits, as anyone can learn by going to the City Drug Store.

Elks ANNUAL LODGE OF SORROW AT AUDITORIUM

Impressive Services Draw a Large Audience—Phil. B. Smythe and Judge O. W. Wright Speak.

Beautiful and impressive were the annual memorial services of the Newark Lodge, No. 301, B. P. O. Elks held in the Auditorium Sunday afternoon, before one of the largest audiences ever assembled for attendance at "The Lodge of Sorrow."

For some time past the committees have been busy arranging their plans, to mark his resting place, his memory was not forgotten by his brothers, repaid for the time and trouble and by the annual memorial services spent in preparations. The stage, the name and deeds of the deceased from which the service was held, was brother was always recalled by the prettily decorated immense American lodge.

At the rear of the stage an immense flag, red or purple and white was placed. At each numeral a lighted electric light was placed, and as the names of the deceased members of the lodge were read the lights were extinguished one at a time.

The members of the local lodge and other Elks in the city met at the club rooms and marched to the Auditorium, sign of blood disorder or simply a carnation in the coat taper. The first often puzzled in their diagnosis. The three rows of the first floor were reserved for the members of the order, to Frank D. Hall, or any good drugs, the rest of the house being given over first was kinder than drugs, and obtain 50 cents' worth of poison. Appeal to this, and if the patient stops at once and the trouble is cured in a few days it may be seen down as having been cecemia, as this is the way to cure it in the world of diseases.

the patients as pointed out by Dr. Paul B. Smith, was one of the most popular doctors in Newark, and a citizen in the highest sense.

On the stage were seated the officers of the lodge, the speakers of the day and the various committees and branches of the order, each wearing a

Thos. McDonald Gets Into Argument and is Struck Over Both Eyes With a Brick.

As the result of an alleged assault made upon him shortly after 12 o'clock, Sunday morning, by Ante McDonald, a colored man, a colored worker boy at the Standard Oil Company, the boy was struck over both eyes with a brick stone.

This is the second time in twenty-four hours that a colored boy has been struck over both eyes by a colored boy.

The colored boy had had a serious argument with his employer in the evening according to the colored workers.

He said that it was in consequence of this argument that the boy was struck over both eyes in an alley between Main street and Canal street, the members of the colored workers.

He spoke of each boy as being a good boy, and said that a few bricks were thrown at him in the course of the argument, from Matheny, but he did not receive a

BAND OF ELK SIGHTED IN WEST

Spokane, Wash., Dec. 7.—Hunters returning from the headwaters of Independence Creek in the Pend Oreille district in northern Idaho, east of Spokane, report sighting a band of elk in the northern part of the state.

As the season will not close until January 1, there is talk of organizing an expedition. The hunters say the band numbered not less than 50 and that they appeared to be in good condition.

The ground is almost inaccessible, and for that reason the animals have been undisturbed for many seasons and increased to a magnificent band.

The mere water that comes from the mineral springs has no special virtue; the mineral salts that are

RAILWAY AFFAIRS

The Interstate commerce commission is making an exhaustive investigation into the business affairs of the terminal railroads of the United States, with a view to ascertain whether or not that body has jurisdiction over them.

It is estimated the rail requirements of the B. & O. for 1909 will aggregate 5,000 tons, costing in the neighborhood of $1,500,000. Additional supplies and rolling stock will require an expenditure of several millions of dollars.

Checks for the regular semi-annual dividend, aggregating $9,137,839, are now being mailed to shareholders of the Pennsylvania lines. The number of women stockholders has increased from 24,000 to 28,000 within the past year.

The report that the B. & O. is going to abandon coke for locomotive fuel on the Pittsburg Junction railroad is denied.

The engineering departments of both the B. & O. and Pennsylvania are preparing plans for a number of small stations along the lines to be built in the near future. None will cost more than $25,000.

By the fast freight service over the B. & O. Southwestern the schedule for produce trains from St. Louis to Pittsburg, Philadelphia and New York has been reduced 18 hours.

For the purpose of prolonging as long as possible the life of cross-ties, and thereby minimizing the consumption of timber, the Pennsylvania railroad has determined in future to treat with croosies which shall be used on its main tracks. Up to very recently the abundance of available timber in the eastern section of the country had rendered unnecessary such a policy, but the increasing scarcity of available timber in recent years has caused the company to make a most thorough inquiry into the question of what policy should be pursued in order to secure an economical supply of cross-ties in the future.

Amid all the hand-shaking which preceded the session, there was evidence of the fact that since they last met they had lost by death one of the most valuable members of the body. This was brought prominently to their attention later, when a resolution was offered and adopted appropriate to the demise of the late Senator Allison of Iowa.

These senators who are probably beginning their last term today are: Ankeny of Washington, Foraker of Ohio, Fullon of Oregon, Henshaw of North Dakota, Hemenway of Indiana, Kittredge of South Dakota, Long of Kansas, McCrea of Kentucky, Platt of New York, and Teeler of Colorado.

Those whose re-election has already been accomplished, or seems sure, are:

Brundage of Connecticut, Clarke of Arkansas, Clay of Georgia, Dillingham of Vermont, Gallinger of New Hampshire, Gore of Oklahoma, Heyburn of Idaho, Hopkins of Illinois, Latimer of South Carolina, McEnery of Louisiana, Newlands of Nevada, Overman of North Carolina, Penrose of Pennsylvania, Smoot of Utah, Stephenson of Wisconsin, and Stone of Missouri. The latter and Brundage still have a fight on their hands.

Vice President Fairbanks, who will be retired to private life March 4, was early on the scene.

If he felt the disappointment of his ambition to become president, he did not show it, for he was all urbanity and smiles. When he entered the senate chamber and called the assembly to order, it was prompt.

Owing to a formal rule established, floral tributes to senators from admiring friends were conspicuously absent from the decks. But they were present in gorgeously array in the marble room.

After the opening prayer by the veteran chaplain, Edward Everett Hale, and the roll call, the three customary resolutions which mark the beginning of a new session were offered and adopted.

The first fixed the hour of daily meetings at noon; the second directed the secretary to notify the house of representatives that the senate was in session, and the third authorizing the vice president to invite a committee to join with the committee appointed by the senate for the purpose of announcing to the president that the congress was ready to receive any message he might wish to send.

Senator Doliver, of Iowa, then arose. In a few words he depicted the grief which he, himself, and the other members of the Iowa delegation felt at the death of his late colleague, and then offered a resolution expressing the deep sense of the senate in the loss that it had sustained.

A feature of the resolution was its reference to the fact that the late senator had served 32 years a longer period than had been allotted to any of his fellow members. After indicating that some future day would be designated for the delivery of speeches in memory of the deceased, the senate adopted the resolution unanimously, and adjourned until tomorrow.

Gov. Cummins, of Iowa, the chosen successor of the late Senator Allison, will probably be sworn in to-morrow.

Scores of representatives were on the floor of the house before noon. More demonstrative than their brethren at the other end of the capitol, the winners in the recent election slapped one another on the back and laughed uproariously. Losers for the first time learned how popular they were, and the knowledge was so sweet it seemed almost to turn defeat into pleasure. They were assured that their departure would be a great loss to congress.

Speaker Cannon's office was a Mecca for all. They crowded the room, smoked cigars and cracked jokes on the campaign. They heaped congratulations on the speaker.

As the hour of meeting approached, the galleries displayed a lively interest in the leaders, as they entered upon the floor. Payne with his big body and shaggy hair was pointed out the man who will lead in the preparation for the new tariff bill.

Stalwart Champ Clark was interesting as the man who will be at the head of the Democrats; Datzell the champion standpatter; Nicholas Longworth; Burton, who is on his way to the senate of Taft's cabinet; Hepburn, a defeated veteran; John Sharpe Williams, the present Democratic leader and United States senator from Mississippi, and Bourke Cockran, all were subjects of gossip. Fifteen teams are entered, including last year's champions, Walter Rutt of Germany and Johann Stoll of Holland.

At a minute to 12 the gaze of the crowd centered upon the door at the sion the galleries were crowded. The presence of many women and their finery was due to the fact that custom has made the capitol, on the opening days of congress, a show place.

At least ten senators are starting today upon their last term of duty. Among them are some who have been prominent in their party councils.

On the other hand, there are nearly twice as many who were receiving congratulations today as the apparently sure indications that they would be re-elected, or upon the accomplished fact.

Amid all the hand-shaking which preceded the session, there was evidence of the fact that since they last met they had lost by death one of the most valuable members of the body. This was brought prominently to their attention later, when a resolution was offered and adopted appropriate to the demise of the late Senator Allison of Iowa.

Owing to a formal rule established, floral tributes to senators from admiring friends were conspicuously absent from the decks. But they were present in gorgeously array in the marble room.

After the opening prayer by the veteran chaplain, Edward Everett Hale, and the roll call, the three customary resolutions which mark the beginning of a new session were offered and adopted.

The first fixed the hour of daily meetings at noon; the second directed the secretary to notify the house of representatives that the senate was in session, and the third authorizing the vice president to invite a committee to join with the committee appointed by the senate for the purpose of announcing to the president that the congress was ready to receive any message he might wish to send.

Although Indigestion and Dyspepsia are so prevalent, most people do not thoroughly understand their cause and cure. There is no reason why people should not eat anything they desire—if they will only chew it carefully and thoroughly. Many actually starve themselves into sickness through fear of eating every good-looking, good-smelling, good-tasting food, because it does not agree with them.

Dieting cannot cure Dyspepsia. If we refuse every article of food that disagrees with us, before long we have nothing left and find ourselves chronic dyspeptics.

We can cure Dyspepsia. We are so confident of this fact that we guarantee a cure, and promise to supply the medicine free of all cost to everyone who will use it, who is not perfectly satisfied with the results which it produces. We exact no promises, and put no one under any obligation whatever. Surely, nothing could be fairer. We are located right here in Newark, and our reputation should be sufficient assurance of the genuineness of our offer.

We want everyone in Newark who is troubled with Indigestion or Dyspepsia in any form to come to our store and get a box of Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets. Take them home and give them a reasonable trial, according to directions. They are very pleasant to take; they soothe the irritable stomach, strengthen and invigorate the digestive organs, promote a healthy and natural bowel action, immediately relieve nausea and all stomach irritation, produce perfect and healthy digestion and assimilation, and promote nutrition.

A 25c package of Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets furnishes 15 days' treatment. In ordinary cases this is sufficient to produce a cure. In more chronic cases a longer treatment, of course, is necessary, and depends upon the severity of the trouble. For such cases, we have two large sizes which sell for 45c and 89c. MUST PROVIDE SCREENS.

Mansfield, Dec. 7.—There will be effective in this city, on and after the 10th, a screen ordinance providing that on Sundays and all other times when the law requires them to be closed, saloons shall not, by curtains, screens, frosted windows, or any other device, prevent a free and unobstructed view of interior thereof. It is also provided that after that date saloons shall not be opened for business until 6 a. m.

right of the speaker's stand. They were looking for "Uncle Joe." At the first glimpse of his familiar countenance, members and spectators joined in a big demonstration of applause. Unconscious as though the outbreak was not for him, the speaker mounted the steps to his throne. He seized the gavel in his good left hand and held it aloft menacingly.

No attention being paid to this warning to be quiet, he hammered vigorously. Finally the house reluctantly came to order.

Dr. Henry D. Couden, the blind chaplain, offered prayer, after which the speaker ordered a roll call, a proceeding that required nearly half an hour. It was important, however, for until a member has responded to his name, he is not entitled to vote. Then the usual routine resolutions, similar to those offered in the senate, were adopted.

Announcement was made of the deaths since the last session, of Representatives Dunewell of New York, Parker of South Dakota, Powers of Maine, and Wiley of Alabama.

A brief resolution in memory of each of them was adopted, and in further respect the house adjourned until tomorrow.

Gasps of astonishment went up from the spectators when they learned that it was over so soon. They had expected to hear the president's message. The message will not be heard until tomorrow.

Washington, Dec. 7.—The house has adjourned until tomorrow. A resolution appointing a committee of five to investigate the purchase of the Panama canal property and ascertain what portion of the purchase price, if any, went to an American syndicate, was introduced in the house by Representative Rainey of Illinois.
